

Kyra Hanlon-Batiste

DIRECTOR OF COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

PROFESSIONAL BIO

Kyra Hanlon-Batiste has been advocating for survivors of gender-based violence since college, where she served as a Sexual Assault Peer Educator, lobbied for the reauthorization of VAWA, and advocated for university changes to support student survivors. She has led community engagement work since 2017 in Memphis, TN and later in Washington, DC at the Georgetown University Center for Social Justice. Her approach to community engagement is rooted in solidarity and mutual aid, recognizing that community members are the experts in their experiences. She has facilitated community engagement projects ranging from neighborhood tax clinics to social justice immersion experiences with community leaders and activists across the world. She served as an Adjunct Faculty member at Georgetown University and has a Bachelor's in Culture and Politics as well as a Master's in Human Resource Management, with a concentration in enacting organizational commitments to diversity, equity, and inclusion.
